Foundation course | Trainer: Priya Raman

The key ideas

- What great teams share: Psychological safety

- What healthy teams look like day to day: People ask questions openly

- Meetings that matter: Prepare before you arrive

- Being a good contributor: Be on time and present

- Speaking up: Decide what you want to say

- Responding when someone speaks up: Say thank you

- Handling disagreement kindly: Assume good intent

- Your next steps: Add one thing to your next meeting

Words to know

Psychological safety: The belief that you can speak up without fear of embarrassment or punishment.

Follow-through: Doing what was agreed, by the date it was agreed.

Constructive: Helping move something forward, for example by offering an idea alongside a problem.

Good intent: The assumption that a colleague is trying to help even when you disagree.

Outcomes
