What you will be able to do

- Recognise your own emotional patterns

- Use a simple pause routine under pressure

- Read the room in meetings more accurately

What emotional intelligence is (and is not)

Emotional intelligence is the ability to notice emotion, understand what it is telling you and choose a useful response. It is a skill, not a personality type, which means it can be practised and improved.

Reflection: Rate your confidence from 1 to 10 now, and again in two weeks.

Mapping your triggers

Most reactive moments follow a pattern. In this module you will map the situations, people and times of day that tend to pull you off balance.

Reflection: Write three sentences about a recent moment this applied to you.

The ninety second pause

A short, repeatable routine for the gap between a trigger and your response: breathe, name the feeling, decide the next useful step.

Reflection: What will you try differently this week? Who will notice?

Reading the room

Practise noticing the signals other people give off in meetings and adjust how you contribute so your point lands.

Reflection: Rate your confidence from 1 to 10 now, and again in two weeks.
